

Dear Jerry,

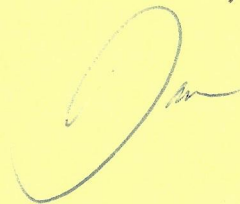

Sept 9, 82

Some time ago I promised you copies of my older stuff. Well the other day I was going through the closet and I came across Riddle. Quite frankly I don't think this book is vintage Dan Sherman. It was my second solo effort, and there's a lot in it that sort of embarrasses me. Nevertheless I thought you might like it.

On another front I had a sort of odd experience with the Church. Gray told me that he needed a quote for Hubbard's book for his book. I gave it to him, he inadvertently gave it to the Church and the next thing any of us knew they had splashed it all over the place---typical shit, uh?

I hope all this finds you well, and next time I write I should have a new typewriter ribbon.

Love,
